However, this publication about movie theaters is so poorly illustrated with dark photos that you experience no joy in viewing them. A few clicks through a simple and inexpensive photo-shop program would have solved that problem. There is no attention to detail given toward the primary focus of the book. What a shame. Save your money. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Little cinema

By L. S. Brooks
Short articles on the movie theatres in the midwest locations....Lacked a number of restored theaters, including the Orpheum Theater in Sioux City, Iowa....bit disapointed, but lots of little details on a number of rural or small town picture palaces.....Enjoyable reading.....with personal quotes and stories.

Time travel is possible with Cinemental Journeys, your guide to classic movie theaters still operating in the Midwest. Over 60 theaters, maps, histories, contact information. We scoured Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, and Nebraska to find hidden classic theater gems. Go back to the days when it was fun to go to the movies! Get Cinemental Journeys today!

"It wasn't the Palace. It wasn't Radio City. But the Granada Theater on a Saturday afternoon gave me two features, a short, a serial, a newsreel, and a cartoon! Cinemental Journeys brings back so many good memories of our gilded palaces." --Ed Asner
"Some of my favorite memories growing up were at the drive-ins and theaters. It began as a great family time and morphed into a magical date time. Cinemental Journeys celebrates those still alive experiences and honors those memories." --Dee Wallace Stone
From the Publisher
Authors Mike and Vicki Walker scoured the states of Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, and Nebraska looking for hidden theatrical gems. From quaint neighborhood theaters to magnificent gilded palaces, they found them, and now you can know where they are too. Cinemental Journeys lets readers experience movie-going the way it used to be, before the advent of multi-plexes, cell-phones, and endless commercials. Once again you can take your hot, buttery popcorn into the theater with a single screen, and settle in to an evening of enchantment as the lights dim and the curtains draw back.
From the Author
We are amazed at the dedication of theater owners and managers across the Midwest. Some of them literally live in their theaters, and spend countless hours popping the corn and mending the projectors, cleaning the auditoriums and changing the marquees. We salute the theater owners and managers of the Midwest!
