Charles Larroque : Memories of St. Martinville before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Memories of St. Martinville:

Perfect for tourists visiting Louisiana for Francofête (the state's 300th anniversary celebration), Congrès Mondial, or any other reason, Memories of St. Martinville presents fifteen historic attractions of Evangeline's Louisiana hometown, perhaps the most French of Cajun cities. The sites of interest include St. Martin de Tours Catholic Church, the cemetery of St. Martinville, and the town statue of Evangeline, whom many claim was actually Emmeline Labiche, ever-faithful to her long-separated Louis Arceneaux. Her remains are said to repose in St. Martinville.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR Charles Larroque is a native of south Louisiana and lives in Lafayette, where he teaches high school. Named Chevalier sans l'Ordre des Palmes Academiques by the French Republic, and recipient of the Prix de Louisiane, the author is published in English and French in several literary reviews, as well as in the local newspaper. He also is the author of Memories of Lafayette and Memoires de Lafayette, both published by Pelican.
