Michelin Travel Publications : Michelin Must Sees Los Angeles (Must See Guides/Michelin) before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Michelin Must Sees Los Angeles (Must See Guides/Michelin):

This was the perfect tool to find something for each of us to do. Shopping, shows, nightlife, the wierd, the interesting, and almost forgot, gambling. Everyone knows that there are casinos in vegas, this book talks about them, but focuses more on what ELSE there is to do in Vegas besides gamble. This book even has a whole section dedicated to kids, it gave me some great ideas for our next family vacation! We are going to vegas for the kids' spring break holiday!

Look inside to see at a glance LAs trendiest neighborhoods, its best beaches, film studios, clubs and places to star-gaze not to mention where to eat, stay, shop for designer duds and get a good facial. Getting Around LA Los Angeles is a drivers town, and its roads, which sprawl out over 467 square miles in the city and 4,081 square miles in the county, can remain clogged throughout the day. Even so, its not unusual to see drivers hurling down the interstates at rates far exceeding the speed limit. LA Freeways Although there are 527 miles of freeway and 382 miles of highway in and around LA, the following routes connect most of the must-see destinations. Keep in mind that I-405 is the major north/south artery, and I-10 is the major east/west thoroughfare. Take US-101 Downtown and to the Valley; US-110 to Pasadena; and I-5 to Anaheim and Orange County.
