Laurie Muench Albano : Milwaukee County Parks (WI) (Images of America) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Milwaukee County Parks (WI) (Images of America):

No epilogue, no index, no current map, no appendix that listed all parks in order of creation, no info about the river parkways, nothing about the Oak Leaf Trail, nor any listing of all 15 golf courses with their dates of establishment and historic tournaments. In addition, it would have been nice to read a little more about the CCC and development of Boerner Botanic Garden, perhaps in a separate chapter. I suspect there are more recent images available, and an effort to have retired employees, staff or patrons donate them would have brought the history detailed in the book up to the date of the system's 100th anniversary. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Great product. By Erica Book was as described. Arrived on time. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Milwaukee County Parks By Cheryl Maederer Excellent historic look back at history of the Milwaukee County Parks System. Photos and text are very informative and I learned much about the parks I love. A must get for everyone in Milwaukee Co.

Milwaukeeans love their parks, and with nearly 15,000 acres of parkland throughout Milwaukee County, there is much to love. But few know the story behind the development of this great park system. Milwaukee County Parks takes readers on a photographic tour of the areas earliest parktown squares and beer gardens established by the early settlers through the creation of city and county park commissions, to the parks today. It will leave one with a better appreciation of the vision and dedication it took to build such a park system and the need to assure it remains intact for the enjoyment and benefit of future generations.

About the Author Laurie Muench Albano is a registered landscape architect and has worked with the Milwaukee County Parks since 1984. Her interest in the history of the parks led to a desire to share this fascinating story with the community. The photographs used in this visual history are primarily from the parks archives. Additional photographs were used courtesy of the Milwaukee County Historical Society and the State of Wisconsin Historical Society.
