By Gary McCaleb
I ordered this and an adjacent Northern Arizona map and frankly, they're disappointing--missing a very significant number of trails which appear on the Coconino and Kaibab USFS visitor maps. On the upside, they are more compact and durable than the USFS maps, and worth keeping in my Jeep for poking around the backcountry surrounding my Flagstaff home...but I won't be purchasing any more in this series.

Nice map.

Great map. Use it all the time in the summer when hiking in the Mogollon Rim. Planning to get all the NatGeo maps and has all the main trails, dirt roads and main roads to access. I do wish it had distances for trails though. Also a reference for trail names since it only gives the trail number. So usually need to find a route and either take an estimate on distance. Or go online with the trail number and find more information on the hike. So be prepared! The map otherwise is very nice and made of a waterproof material.

I really like these maps, and have many for different areas of the country. They are large and easy to read, as well as being water-resistant and durable. Detail is great and can be used for off-roading or hiking.
