Jenna Blough : Moon Death Valley National Park (Moon Handbooks) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Moon Death Valley National Park (Moon Handbooks):

Accurate, up to date, everything that you need to know.By ManFromDolaJust used this book on a trip to Death Valley and it was spot on with everything that it said. Everything that I needed in a guide book for DVNP, I'm glad that I bought it and had it with me.2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Excellent Death Valley Summary and Guide.By VladFor the first time visitor to the Death Valley National Park, this book is excellent. Not only did it help to prepare me for what I wanted to visit before my trip and my overall trip planning, but was also very helpful during my trip. I really did not need any other literature (except for the separate park map that I purchased). Very well organized in sections that made sense and provided enough details for all of the areas and trails, yet not overwhelming. It's also small and light enough to be able to take with you on a hike. Death Valley Park is huge and obviously I did not have the opportunity to visit every single place - if I will go again, this book will still come in very handy. Highly recommend. 2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. easy to carry By barbquilter used it all through Death Valley tour (6 dayys). Was valuable and small, easy to carry. Brief descriptions of each area but gave enough info

With sculpted sand dunes, crusted salt flats, and polished marble canyons, Death Valley is as close as you can get to another planet. This book tells you what you need to know to plan the perfect trip for you: Strategies for how to get there, how long it will take, and where to stop along the way Hikes to abandoned mining camps, remote ghost towns, and hidden springs The most scenic backcountry roads in and around the park The best places to pitch a tent, park your RV, or bed down indoors Excursions beyond the park boundaries to offbeat sights like the Amargosa Opera House and the Trona Pinnacles

About the Author Jenna Blough grew up on the edge of the beautiful Blue Ridge Mountains, where she was allowed to run wild, instilling a love of the outdoors early on. After her parents dragged her and her sister on a cross-country road trip of epic proportions visiting American classics like Wall Drug in South Dakota, Mesa Verde in Colorado, and the Petrified Forest in Arizona she developed an equal appreciation for Wild West roadside attractions, historic sites, and wilderness. Jenna eventually found the California desert to be her geographic soul mate. Drawn by the austere beauty of Death Valley, she is fascinated by its cultural history, ghost towns, native sites, and the Mojave's shifting landscape. Jenna received an undergraduate degree in cultural anthropology, an MA in English literature, and an MFA in writing. Moon Death Valley is her first travel book. When she's not living out of a tent, Jenna resides in Los Angeles with her husband Ryan Jones. Visit her blog at whentheroadends.com.
