Anna Dubrovsky : Moon Pennsylvania (Moon Handbooks) before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Moon Pennsylvania (Moon Handbooks):

Levic It seems like there are not many guidebooks on PENNSYLVANIA so I was glad to find this one from MOON. This book was helpful when visiting large cities and well-known tourist sights. I traveled around Pennsylvania and found that many smaller places were not listed. I also found it hard to use at times. I would check the index in the back for a particular location and several pages would be listed and they were not sequential so I would have to look at the pages to see which related to tourist information. Overall, it is a nice book and I found it helpful when locations I wanted to visit were listed Pennsylvania resident and voracious traveler Anna Dubrovsky covers the best of the Keystone State, including Philadelphia, Amish country, the Pocono Mountains, Hershey, and Presque Isle. She offers a variety of unique travel strategies from kid-pleasing getaways to rail fan meccas and details the most popular sights, including the Liberty Bell, Independence Hall, Gettysburg National Military Park, and Fallingwater. Complete with expert tips on places to dine, sleep, and shop, Moon Pennsylvania gives travelers the tools they need to create a more personal and memorable experience.

About the Author Anna Dubrovsky has lived in more than a dozen cities on three continents and has explored countless others. She has cycled the western coast of Ireland, hang-glided over Rio, motorcycled up a mountain in the Dominican Republic, scuba-dived in Costa Rica, and camped along the Appalachian Trail. She has marveled at the Taj Mahal, prayed at the Western Wall, and danced in Havana. But Pennsylvania keeps pulling her back. Anna first set foot in Pennsylvania when her seventh-grade class ventured from Cleveland to Philadelphia, belting Whitney Houston ballads all the way. Her family relocated to Pittsburgh a few years later, and Anna's first driver's license was a Pennsylvania one. She left the Keystone State to study journalism at Northwestern University but returned to intern at the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette and The Morning Call of Allentown, where she covered The Great Allentown Fair from the perspective of a sheep. Upon graduating, she came back to Pennsylvania to write about state government and politics for the York Daily Record. In the years that followed, she enjoyed stints as a political journalist in New York City, a financial journalist in New Jersey and Los Angeles, and a student of yoga in India. Then she returned to Pennsylvania once again and became a wife, mother, and Moon author. You can find her online at anywherebutacubicle.com.
