Terry Rudnick : Moon Washington Fishing: The Complete Guide to Lakes, Streams, and Saltwater (Moon Outdoors) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Moon Washington Fishing: The Complete Guide to Lakes, Streams, and Saltwater (Moon Outdoors):

1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Not enough specific information about river and stream access for bank fishing. By BEA413 Maps have inadequate detail to find the access to the fishing areas of the various lakes and streams. Written directions to river access for bank fishing are incomplete or very sketchy and the various access points and fishing holes are not adequately described. I was expecting much more detailed information about where to access the streams, especially. How do I find "Cracker Bar", Thomas Eddy, or the "Two Bit Hole", etc, with the information in this book????? 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. It's not really even close to complete. Just a ... By Norm Wasson It's not really even close to complete. Just a broad generalization of available areas to fish. Not much different than some of the guides from the 1970's and 1980's. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. This book could be better By Bob The book lists a lot of fishing spots, but is not good about describing how to get to these places. For example, I'm interested in fishing the upper forks of the Snoqualmie River, and there was no info on how to get to them and where to access them.

About the Author Terry Rudnick grew up fishing the lakes, streams, and ponds within bicycling range of his home in Washington's Puget Sound Basin. He's never found a good reason to live anywhere else in the world. Although Terry has fished throughout the western United States and Canada, the angling opportunities available in the Evergreen State always bring him back to the waters he's known for more than 50 years. Since selling his first magazine article in 1971, Terry has shared his fishing knowledge in hundreds of feature articles and news stories published in national and regional publications. He has earned numerous writing and photography awards along the way, including the National Conservationist of the Year Communications Award from Trout Unlimited. An enthusiastic and energetic speaker, Terry gives seminars and workshops on a wide variety of fishing topics for sports organizations and consumer shows throughout the Pacific Northwest. From 2002 until 2011, he also shared his knowledge and love of angling with tens of thousands of kids in his role as youth sport fishing coordinator for Washington's Department of Fish and Wildlife. When he's not writing, speaking, or teaching, Terry can be found fishing near his home on the shores of southern Puget Sound, which he shares with his wife, Roberta, Labrador retriever, Haley, and German shepherd, Brandy.
