Ann Marie Brown : Moon Yosemite, Sequoia Kings Canyon (Moon Handbooks) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Moon Yosemite, Sequoia Kings Canyon (Moon Handbooks):

It has information on a lot of trails and sights that is making it easier for my family to plan our trip. When I find a place in the book that looks like it might be a "must see" I go on line to get more details and also do an image search. I like that it recommends times of day for seeing some places due to temperature and haze. It also gives an average amount of time for driving and hiking as well as difficulty of hikes. It gives information on places to eat, sleep and buy gas. It has met all of my expectations.2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Five StarsBy Hunjae ParkI like travel books from Moon better than that from Lonely Planet. Very comprehensive and good for planning trips. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Five Stars

About the Author Ann Marie Brown made her first solo trip to Yosemite at age 22. Like many first-time visitors, she was immediately inspired by the Valley's sheer granite walls and shimmering waterfalls. Parking her car at the first trailhead she saw, she set off on the Four-Mile Trail. Carrying nothing but a water bottle, she intended to hike only a short distance but was so wowed by the scenery that she kept on walking. Two hours later she found herself at Glacier Point, considered by many to be the grandest viewpoint in the West. Scanning the scene, she noticed tourists dressed in everything from high heels to a nun's habit, and realized that she could have driven to Glacier Point instead of walking. Ann Marie vowed she'd never again go hiking without a map. More than two decades later, Ann Marie has gained substantially more outdoor savvy and is a dedicated California outdoorswoman. She hikes, camps, and bikes more than 150 days each year. She is the author of 13 books with Moon, including several outdoors titles 101 Great Hikes of the San Francisco Bay Area, Moon California Waterfalls, and Northern California Biking and is the co-author of California Hiking with Tom Stienstra. Her work has also appeared in Sunset, VIA, and California magazines.
